

The Spiritual Significance Of Music

DAVID LANZ

Music, like spirit, is invisible. Yet it moves us to sing, dance, laugh, cry, even march to war, to heal, and pray, Music has the power to bring thousands of people together to celebrate. What else in life has this power? Everything on this Earth eventually crumbles and returns to the dust of which it was made. Only Spirit remains. Great music endures centuries, outliving it's creators and performers. Music, being so related to spirit, is not only a wonderful tonic, but an inspirational force and powerful ally that can lead one out of spiritual darkness alleviating emotional, physiological, and physical pain; restoring and refreshing the soul. Is it the voice of God? The sound of nature? Music, like spirit, like God, is indeed invisible and humankind will be wise to recognize it's healing and spiritual significance, and they need only to listen!
